"This dude's voice is silk. Do yourself a favor and go see Ebinezzer." - John Holmberg, Holmberg's Morning Sickness, 98KUPD

Ebinezzer sheds light on moral corruption in upcoming soulful rock music video, "Money Right".

Straight from the Sonoran Desert of Phoenix, these five free thinkers Joshua Michael (Vocals and Lead Guitar), James Brown (Guitar), Joey Brown (Bass), Josh Brown (Drums), and Self Knowledge (DJ) use blues/rock as a platform to incorporate their multi-generic and inspirational creations. Conquering much of the desert landscape in an unbelievably small amount of time, Ebinezzer continues to impress and spin heads.

Current EP on sale: In the winter of 2017, Ebinezzer released the five-song EP "Working as Antennas", which has since become a fan-favorite. This EP leaves no doubt that they have raw talent, pairing smooth and savory vocals with rocking riffs.

MONEY RIGHT SYNOPSIS

This eerie music video is a must-see. This captivating story centers around a man who is stuck in a business that leaves him deeply conflicted. As he holds a gun to his temple, he is cracking under the pressure. Featuring powerful vocals, this song will leave you deeply haunted with lyrics such as, "Pray to whomever you need to pray to, it's all downhill from here anyway". This story vividly captures the cost of corruption and is a reflection on the system that we live in. It is truly a masterpiece with stunning visuals.
